Welcome to ANZASA 2025

Democracy and Resilience: At a moment of profound national and international reflection and debates about the future of American institutions, we welcome explorations of democracy's fragility and resilience through American history as well as in the present and future. This theme invites scholars to consider how democratic ideals, practices, and institutions have been challenged, reimagined, defended, and transformed throughout the American experience.

Keynote Speakers

Melinda Cooper (Australian National University) is Professor in the School of Sociology at the Australian National University. She is the author of two recent books on American political economy, Counterrevolution: Extravagance and Austerity in Public Finance (2024) and Family Values: Between Neoliberalism and the New Social Conservatism (2017). She is currently writing a book on factions of asset-based capitalism and their political alliances.

Kendall Johnson (Hong Kong University): An interdisciplinary scholar of British and US literatures, Professor Kendall A. Johnson (HKU) researches material print culture in a transnational and global historical frame. His publications include The New Middle Kingdom: China and the Early American Romance of Free Trade (2017), Narratives of Free Trade in Early US-China Relations (editor, 2010), and Henry James and the Visual (2007). His articles have appeared in American Literature, American Quarterly, Modern Fiction Studies, and elsewhere.

Nancy Beck Young (University of Houston) is the John and Rebecca Moores Professor of History & Director of the Center for Public History. A historian of twentieth-century American politics, Professor Young also has interests in public history and digital humanities. She has authored five books including Two Suns of the Southwest: Lyndon Johnson, Barry Goldwater, and the 1964 Battle between Liberalism and Conservatism (2019) and Why We Fight: Congress and the Politics of World War II (2013). She is currently working on two book projects: a biography of John Nance Garner and a book about the idea of the first lady.
